Jacksons' Universal

Washing Compound.

THE last great labor saving invention now being introduced everywhere. A fair trial will convince the most sceptical, no wash board necessary. Three-fourths in money, time, and labor saved by its use.—It will not injure fabrics of any kind, and meets a want long felt in household. Will remove paint, grease or stains, heals chapped hands, softens and beautifies the skin. It can be easily and cheaply made, costing far less than soap, and is superior to the best of soap. It is meeting with the greatest favor wherever introduced. Persons will be supplied with Family Rights for making and using it, by the Agent, J. Kirkland. The Compound will be left for sale at the stores of Mr. S. C. Hannan, Water St., Rochester; L. F. Kramer, North Sidewater; and H. B. Anderson, Beaver. Orders for Family Rights may be left at the boarding House of A. Anderson, near the point, Rochester, or sent by mail, enclosing $1,00 to J. Kirkland, Rochester, Pa. jy18'67:6mos.

THE SOLILOQUY OF ARNOLD.

BY REV. EDWARD H. JONES.

When he was invested with the command of West Point by Washington, General Arnold entered into a secret correspondence with Sir Henry Clinton, and agreed that he would make a disposition of his forces which would enable the British general to surprise the post under such circumstances that the garrison must either lay down their arms, or be cut to pieces.

The plan is fixed; I hesitate no more
Between despair and hope. As leaves the shore
The lonely mariner, though adverse fate,
May merge his bark, or cast him to mistate
Upon a savage coast, so, wrought at last
Up to a frenzied purpose, I have passed
The Rubicon. Farewell my old renown!
Here I breathe mildew on my warrior crown;
Here honor parts from me, and base deceit
Steps to the usurper's throne; I cannot meet
The withering censure of the rebel band,
And, therefore, to the strong I yield this heart and hand.

What else befits me? I have misapplied
The nation's funds, and ever gratified
Each vaulting wish, tho' Justice wept the deed;
And here, beneath the load of pressing need,
I must have gold. How else the clamorous cry
Of creditors appease, and satisfy
Demands which haunt me more than dreams of blood,
And claims which chill more than Canadian flood?
Stay? My accounts betray the swindler's mark.
Go! And my path, tho' smooth, like Tartarus is dark.

These rocky ridges, how they shelve on high,
Each a stern sentinel in majesty.
Yes, 'tis your own Gibralter, Washington!
And must the strong hold of his hope be won?
Won? Twenty thousand scarcely could invest
That sure defence, which o'er the river's breast
Casts a gigantic shadow; but my plan
Dispenses with the formidable van,
And Clinton may my garrison surprise,
With few sulphurous clouds to blot these azure skies.

And yet a pang comes over me—I see
Myself at Saratoga; full and free
Goes up the peal of noble-hearted men;
Among the wounded am I numbered then,
And my outgushing feelings cling to those
Who perilled all to face their country's foes.
Ah! when that wound a soldier's pride increased,
And gratulation scarce its pæan ceased,
I thought not then, oh, God! the stamp of shame
Would stand imprinted thus upon my hard-earned fame.

Avaunt, compunction! Conscience, to the wind!
Gold, gold I need—gold must Sir Henry find!
A rankling grudge is mine, for why not I
Commander of their forces? To the sky
Ever goes up the peal for Washington.
Is he a god, Virginia's favored son?
Why should the incense fume for evermore?
Must he my skill, my prowess shadow o'er?
Ere this autumnal moon has filled its horn,
His honors must be nipp'd, his rising glories shorn.

Ah! he securely rests upon my faith!
Securely, when the spectre dims his path!
How unsuspecting has he ever been;
Above the false, the sinister, the mean!
But hold such eulogy—I will not praise;
Ming'ling his task to tarnish all his days.
West Point, thy rocky ridges seem to say,
Be firm as granite, crown the work to-day.
Blot Saratoga, hearth and home abjure,
André I meet again, the gold I must secure.

MY ANGEL NAME.

In the land where I am going,
When my earthly life is o'er,
When the tired hands cease their striving,
And the tired hearts ache no more;
In the land of light and beauty,
Where no shadows ever came
To o'er cloud the perfect glory—
What shall be my angel name?

When the spirits who await me,
Meet me at the entering in,
With the name of love and music
Will their welcome words begin.
Not the one so dimmed with early stains,
Linked with thoughts of grief and shame;
No, the name that mortals give me,
Will not be my angel name.

I have heard it all to often
Uttered by unloving lips;
E'en they dare with sin and sorrow
Dim it with their deep eclipse.
I shall change it like a garment,
When I leave this mortal frame,
And at life's immortal baptism,
I shall have another name.

For the angels will not call me
By the name I have on earth;
They will speak a holier language,
Where I have a holier birth;
Syllabled in heavenly music,
Sweeter far than earth may claim,
Very gentle, pure and tender—
Such shall be my angel name.

It has thrilled my spirit often,
In the holiest of my dreams;
But its beauty lingers with me,
Only like the morning beams,
Weary of the jarring discord
Which the lips of mortals frame;
When shall I with joy and rapture,
Answer to my angel name?

BACHELOR BROWN'S COURTSHIP.

Richard Brown had lived a bachelor for forty years, and declared his intention of continuing in the state of single blessedness for the remainder of his life—greatly to the satisfaction of his relatives the Hinkles, with whom he resided, for be it known Uncle Richard was worth a cool half million, and the Hinkels were his only living relations, and unless as Mrs. Hinkle said, some "nasty charity" came in for his property, who should he leave it to but to his own cousins or their children?

Hopeful as poor human nature is of longevity, Mr. and Mrs. Hinkle scarcely expected to survive their cousin, who was their junior by ten years, but Adelaide and Rose, and Charles and William, might in all probability be his heirs, and to this end the parents labored. Uncle Richard had the best room in the house, the best chair, the most particular consideration. His wishes were deferred to and his advice taken on every occasion, and he actually came to be loved; for, with all his quaint old-fashioned ways, and his habit of sitting as utterly silent as though he had been deaf and dumb, he was a lovable man. Matters progressed smoothly enough until it was habit and not hypocrisy which made Cousin Richard actually master of the house.

He was very obliging—wonderfully so in most respects. He would attend to anything for anybody—match ribbons when nobody else could—escort the girls to places of amusement—go dutifully to church with their mamma—attend to marketing and posting of letters, and the gasmeter, and the turning off of the water in frosty weather. He was always ready to search the house with a poker at the dead of night, when any one "heard a noise."

He went to the dentist with people who wanted their teeth drawn, and always seemed to have sugar-plums in his pocket. But one thing Cousin Richard would not do, and that was to exhibit the least sign of politeness to lady visitors.

He never saw any one home. He never even spent the evening in their company. He invariably shut himself up in his own room and had his tea there when one of these individuals was reported to be in the house, and when travelling had been known in a train to shut his eyes tight when a young lady entered, and remain with them closed until she left the carriage. As a general thing, indeed he always chose a carriage where he need not be intruded upon.

"It was just as well after all," said Mrs. Hinkle, but it was a peculiarity not quite as agreeable to Mr. H. when he found the pleasant task of 'seeing Miss Smith or Miss Jones home' imposed upon himself. He argued that such duties were Cousin Dick's, though he never told him so. It would not have been pleasant to provoke him, and if anything could have offended Bachelor Brown mortally, it would have been to insist upon his offering any gallant attentions to the softer sex.

However, a day came at last which set the household in commotion.

Miss Amanda Dove had been invited to spend a week with the Hinkles, and Miss Dove being a stranger, was to wait at the station, until some one came for her in the carriage.

The Hinkles resided some miles out of the town, and had not occupied their residence for many months, so that people were not always properly directed by the neighbors.

It was decided that Mr. Hinkle should escort Miss Dove, but before the day of her arrival dawned business had called that gentleman to Sheffield. Moreover, Mrs. Hinkle had the influenza, and the boys were at boarding-school. No one was to be found to drive, and neither Rose nor Adelaide could handle the reins. Miss Dove was to come at nine, and what would she think of them if no one came for her?

"Indeed," said Mrs. Hinkle, "it would be shocking treatment for the dear girl. I must ask your Cousin Richard.

"You never dare, ma," said Rose, aghast.

"In such a case, you know—" said Mrs. Hinkle.

"He'll not do it," said Adelaide.

"Of course not," said Rose.

Mrs. Hinkle shook her head.

"I fear he will not," she said, and assuming an expression which would have done credit to Joan of Arc, mounted the stairs to Cousin Richard's study.

"Are you busy, Richard?" she asked as she entered.

"Not at all—sit down," said Bachelor Brown.

"You see how ill I am," said Mrs. Hinkle; "I can hardly hold up my head, much less drive, and Mr. Hinkle is away, and the boys too; and no one can handle the reins, and—"

"Well," said Bachelor Brown.

"And there is poor Miss Dove at the station with her trunk by this time," said Mrs. Hinkle with a gasp.

"Ah!" said Bachelor Brown, "what a pity."

Mrs. Hinkle felt she had not begun yet—Bachelor Brown could not understand what she wanted.

"It's a favor—a great favor to ask, I know," she said, "but couldn't you just for once do it?"

"Do what, Maria?" asked Bachelor Brown.

"Go for her," said Mrs. Hinkle.

"For Miss Dove?"

"Yes."

"Oh dear no," said Cousin Richard.

"But——" began Mrs. Hinkle.

"Maria," said the old bachelor, "young ladies my little cousins excepted, are my abomination. An effected, conceited, absurd set of creatures, I never had anything to do with 'em and I never will. No doubt she is capable of finding her way here. They all appear to be. I shan't go for her."

Mrs. Hinkle retreated

"What will she think of us?" she said sobbing.

"Don't cry," said Bachelor Brown, "I'll see if any of the hands over at Oats' place can drive over for her."

And out he went, but all the hands on Oats' place were busy with the hay, which stood in danger from a coming shower. Richard returned without the least success.

"A shower, too," said Rose. "Poor dear Amanda; I'll try what I can do with my cousin."

And in the study she spent an hour, teasing and worrying without effect.

"Let her 'get lost,'" said Bachelor Brown. "No doubt she'd like it. And as for her trunk, why can't girls travel with a portmanteau, as we do?"

And Rose departed, pouting. She found Adelaide in an extremely merry mood.

"Don't laugh," she said, "think of poor Amanda."

"I am thinking of her," said Adelaide, "and Cousin Dick shall go. I'll tell a fib."

"For shame," said Rose.

"One ought to make some sacrifice for a friend," said Adelaide. "I'll tell him she's a child. He's always good to children."

"It will never do," said Mrs. Hinkle, "he'll never forgive you."

But Adelaide ran up to her cousin's study, and burst in with an exceedingly theatrical laugh.

"What a mistake!" she said, "and so stupid of them all. You think Amanda is a grown young lady, don't you?"

"Isn't she?" asked the bachelor.

"As if a child of nine years could be!" said Adelaide. "Poor little thing!"

"Poor little thing, indeed," said the old bachelor, hurrying on his coat and hat. "Bless me, why didn't you mention it. Poor little soul!"

And in a few minutes the light wagonette was driven down the road, and the Hinkles stood looking after it.

"I'm half frightened," said Rose.

"So am I," said Adelaide. "But it's done, and cannot be helped now. I'll manage to coax him to forgive me, and it wouldn't do to leave a friend in such a position, you know, and I didn't say she was a child."

Meanwhile, Bachelor Brown drove to the station. It was a long drive over a bad road, but he kept on his way very cheerfully. He was extremely fond of children.

When on reaching the station, he saw no sign of her presence, he grew alarmed. If she had been lost through his neglect, he could never forgive himself. He ran his fingers through his curly hair, and peeped into the ladies' waiting room. Only a very fine full grown young woman sat there, and he retreated. The woman who waited in the apartment came out of her nook with a courtesy as she saw him, and he addressed her:

"Have you seen a little girl waiting for some one?"

"No sir," said the woman. "There were two come down, but they are gone."

"Oh, dear! oh, dear!" said Bachelor Brown; "I hope there's no mistake. It's a little Miss Dove, and if the dear little soul has gone astray I'm entirely to blame. Please make inquiries—there's a good woman!"

As he uttered these words the full-grown young lady in the waiting room was seen to blush violently as she arose.

"I'm Amanda Dove," she said, "and I expected some one from Mr. Hinkle's."

Bachelor Brown stood aghast. He had spoken of this "dear little thing," his face also turned scarlet.

"I—I beg your pardon, ma'am," he began. "I expected to find a little girl—I wouldn't have used such expressions for the world—I—"

"I comprehend," said the young lady, "don't mind in the least. I—"

"Is this your trunk, ma'am?" said Bachelor Brown, in a hurry.

"Yes, sir," said the lady looking down.

And in a few moments the two were driving towards Hinkles' country seat. Never had Bachelor Brown found himself so close to any young lady, as he did before. He was wofully confused somehow he liked it. How pretty she was, he thought. How pink and white; how [illegible] hair was—How the blue ribbons [illegible] bonnet set off her face. Then he began to wonder what she thought of him. Would she [illegible] forgot the road, and suddenly found that he had lost himself. To add to the dilemma the storm, which had been threatening for hours, burst at the very moment when Bachelor Brown found it impossible to tell whether the left road or the right led homeward; and the horse was afraid of lightning, and grew restive. Miss Amanda Dove was afraid of lightning also. She gave a little scream, and clung to Bachelor Brown's coat sleeve.

Bachelor Brown looked down at her. It was such a soft plump hand. Her eyes were round and blue in her terror and he forgot she was a young lady.

"I'll take care of you," he said; a flash of lightning, a roar of thunder, an attempt on the part of the horse to run away, interrupted him

Miss Dove turned pale. Bachelor Brown looked terrified. He cast a glance about him. Near the road was a parsonage, connected with its church by a garden.

"I tell you what we'll do," he said. "We'll ask for shelter until the storm is over. A clergyman ought to be Christian enough to take us in."

And, driving to the gate, he assisted Miss Dove to alight. As he did so two hired men rushed out and began to attend to the horse and vehicle, and an old lady and gentleman appeared upon the steps.

"So glad you're early enough to escape the worst of the storm."

"Do come in," said the old lady. "We were expecting you—for on such an occasion people always keep their appointments, rain or sunshine, I believe."

"What, on earth does she mean?" said Bachelor Brown. "But it's very kind of them," and, while the old lady hurried Miss Dove away to dry her things, he sat with the old clergyman in the parlor.

"Do you feel at all nervous, sir?" said the old gentleman, after a pause.

"No, sir, thank you," said Bahelcor Brown.

"Most men do, sir," said the clergyman.

"Yes; lightning is a nervous sort of thing," said Bachelor Brown.

"I did not allude to the storm."

"Indeed, sir."

"But to the approaching ceremony."

"Eh?" said Bachelor Brown.

"In your note, you know, you told me that you were too nervous to stand before the whole congregation in church, and preferred a quiet wedding at my house," said the old man.

Bachelor Brown stared at him in astonishment. The truth dawned upon him.

"You expected a—young couple?" he said.

"Oh, you are quite young enough, sir," said the innocent clergyman. "And I must say the young lady appears a very charming person."

Bachelor Brown felt himself blush.

"Should you think she'd make a good wife?" he asked.

"Undoubtedly," said the clergyman.

"And you think a man is—happier—for—for entering the nuptial state?" he enquired.

"No man can be happy without so doing, and it is every man's duty," said the old gentleman, believing every word he said.

"She is a dear little thing," thought Mr. Brown to himself. "I never liked a girl so much. "It's very awkard to explain. I wonder whether—"

And just then Miss Dove entered the room, looking angelic without her bonnet, to Mr. Brown. Bachelor Brown drew her aside.

"I have something to say to you, Miss Dove," he said.

"Dear me," said Miss Dove.

"They've made a mistake," said Bachelor Brown. "They think we—we—we are we—are people they expect—a young couple, you know, about it—"

"Oh, dear, do they!" whispered Miss Dove.

"Yes," said Bachelor Brown. "Now it would be very awkard for me to explain.—And I like you so much. Couldn't you like me, too, and let me do it—eh?"

"Do what, Mr. Brown?" said Amanda.

"Marry us," said Bachelor B.

"Of course not," said Amanda. "What would the Hinkles say?"

"They'd be delighted," said Richard, growing bolder. Then he put his arm around her waist.

"I don't know much about this sort of thing, but you are the only nice girl I ever saw. Please do. I'm not such a bad fellow. I'll be good to you."

"I know you are good," said Amanda, "but—"

"But then I'm ugly, eh?" said Richard.

"Ah, no, not at all."

"Well?"

"It would be so odd."

"Well," said Bachelor Brown, "that's my fault, and they know I'm odd, my dear."

Four hours after the Hinkles heard the light wagonette drive to the door, and rushed out to greet Amanda.

"We've been so alarmed," said Mrs. Hinkle.

"Such a storm," said Rose.

"Were you frightened?" asked Adelaide.

But Amanda said nothing

Uncle Richard, too, shrank, as though he were afraid of something.

"Tell 'em Amanda," he said.

"No; you tell them, Richard," said Amanda.

The Hinkles listened in amazement.

"What is there to tell?" asked Mrs. Hinkle.

"What is all the mystery about?"

And Cousin Richard answered, sheepishly "Nothing—only we've been getting married. This is my wife, Mrs. Brown.

It was the only explanation ever offered. The Hinkles never comprehended it. It was always a mystery to them; and though they were profuse in their congratulations, and always continued the best of friends, the fortune which might have been Rose's, or Adelaide's rather troubled Mrs. Hinkle; and she always declared in secret family councils that she was perfectly sure Uncle Richard married out of spite to punish Adlaide for the trick she had played upon him.

A Re-union After a Separation of Thirty Years.

We heard yesterday of a pleasing incident in life, which will bear repetition in our columns. Some thirty years ago the only two brothers of a family, separated at their native town in new England, both taking different directions to push their fortunes in life. One of them came to Pittsburgh, where he embarked in business and made quite a respectable competence, on which he retired. He frequently endeavored to learn something of the whereabouts of his brother, but to no avail, and after the lapse of years arrived at the conclusion that he was dead. A month or two since a daughter of our Pittsburgh friend wrote on a venture to the native town of her father to make inquiries concerning her uncle, and received a letter in return, which was written by the long lost relative. He stated that he had heard two weeks after the departure of his brother, that he had gone down in an ill-fated vessel at sea, and never thought otherwise than to mourn him as dead. He had returned to his native city to enjoy a fortune made in Canada, where he had been since parting with his brother, a few months before the receipt of his letter.—The brothers met in this city on Sunday last, after maurning each other as dead for more than a quarter of a century, their joy can be imagined, not told.—Pitts. Gaz.

AT a Sunday-school celebration recently on Long Island, prizes were given to such children as had committed the greatest number of verses in the New Testament to memory. An infant four years old recited one hundred and eleven verses of St. Mark's Gospel.

A LAD in Western, Mo., a few days since, picked up a silver snuff box in the streets of that city, which proved to belong to a Mr. Mettier, of that place. It had been lost for ten years, and the surprise and joy of the owner, it is said, knew no bounds.

MY son, take those eggs to town, and if you can't get a dime a dozen for them bring them back. Jemmy went as directed, and came back again, saying: Mother let me alone for a trade; they all tried to get 'em for fifteen cents, but I screwed 'em up to a dime.

THERE are nearly two dozen political journals now published in Paris, and nineteen others have been authorized by the government, which have not yet made their appearance.

FIVE lines of railway from the east are to make Omaha their terminus, and four others will tap the Pacific Railroad within 150 miles of that point.

Two young Americans are making military balloon observations of the movements of the Parrguayan army for the benefit of the Brazilian commander.

THE colored people of New York are making preparations for a State Convention at Syracuse, next month with a view of co-operating with the radicals to secure manhood suffrage.

OUR INDEBTEDNESS.

Every dollar of war tax that the people are called upon to pay reminds them who it was and what party it was that precipitated this war, and thereby imposed this burden on the country. On this question there is fortunately no room for difference of opinion it is a matter of history that will go down to future generations to all coming time that the leaders of the Democratic party when in full control of the Government of the United States, initiated the rebellion that cost so many lives and so much treasure, and which brought upon the people so grevious a burthen. Nor were the southern Democrats alone responsible for this war and this debt. Not only did Buchanan, the Democratic President, and a northern man, and his Cabinet, consisting both of Northern and Southern Democrats, industriously aid in preparing the way for the rebellion but the most influential Northern Democrats gave the most solemn promises that they would furnish actual aid and support to the South in case of any movement of Northern troops to put down a rebellion, should one be initiated. Thus encouraged, the leading Democrats of the Southern section of the Union, encouraged and aided in every possible way by a Democratic Administration of the Federal Government, which placed the armies and treasury of the nation at their disposal, proceeded to make everything sure before an honest man should be permitted to take his position at the helm. When Abraham Lincoln proceeded to Washington, and escaped assassination by passing through Baltimore in disguise, the revolt had so far progressed that the conspirators supposed themselves completely master of the situation, and all assurances on the part of the President that slavery would not be interfered with if they returned to their allegiance as good citizens were hailed with derision, for they regarded his position as little better than that of a prisoner of war.

At a later date, when the loyal men of the North were making superhuman efforts to crush out the rebellion, the leaders of the Confederacy were encouraged to hold out year after year from the reiterated assurances that Lincoln's administration had not the power to put down the rebellion, that it would soon be exhausted in resorces of men and money. After the war commenced the debt would not have reached one-tenth the amount but for this aid and encouragement given to the enemy from the Democratic party.

When Grant was on his way to Richmond and successfully puting in operation his combinations that were to circumvent and destroy the monster, the Democracy assembled in National Convenion and proclaimed to the world that the efforts to put down rebellion by force had proved a failure, and demanded a cessation of hostilities.

We see plainly in the history of the past where the responsibility rests for this great war debt which bears so heavily on the industry of the people. The same treacherous policy is adopted by the Copperhead democracy in reference to reconstruction. They counsel the South to reject the mild terms of reconstruction embraced in the laws of Congress to keep the country in turmoil and disorder until some distant day, when it is hoped that party may come into power, when treason will be rewarded and loyalty punished.—Niagara Journal.

MRS. LINCOLN.

In the New York World and the News, fit agencies for such a purpose, we find an extraordinary series of letters, which we publish in another column, concerning Mrs. LINCOLN and her wardrobe. We scarcely know how to characterize the spirit of these letters or the taste that dictated their publication.—Our first theory of the case would be, that the whole affair, correspondence and all, was a fabrication for damaging the Republican party, casting a slur on our late lamented President, and sacrificing the character of Mrs. LINCOLN. But the letters appear as genuine in the papers. Our second theory then is, that Mrs. LINCOLN has been led into her terrible mistake by designing men of the Democratic party. The World, which seems to be perfectly posted in all the minutia of the business, says: "The question was asked Mrs. L. what her feelings were in regard to the Republican party, &c." The World could tell, perhaps, who asked that leading question, that drew from the poor woman an answer so exactly to its own wishes.

On this theory we examine the case. Mr. LINCOLN, a plain living, economical man, was estimated, on his decease, to be worth $70,000. If his salary was spent, he did not spend it. And his wife could hardly have spent it, since the costly articles offered for sale, valued at $34,000, were gifts to her, as we are assured by herself. But according to her own statement, she has $22,000, and no debt, two and a half years ago.

What has become of that? And further, with an income of $1,700, the pressure of party could not be so severe, as the letters represent, requiring her to sacrifice one-third of the appraised value of the articles in order to get the avails in a week. The language, the temper, the statements of the letter of Mrs. LINCOLN appear like a piece of over-acting in a constrained part.

The conclusion to which any one accustomed to weigh internal evidence will come is, that, if the letters are genuine, Mrs. LINCOLN, whose judgment and taste have never been rated high, has been beset and prompted by cruel and unscrupulous advisers in the interest of the Democratic party, that they might have the denouement to publish just on the eve of election. The adroitness of the World, in throwing in its comments and drawing its inferences indicates a noticeable familiarity with the transaction, and steadiness of purpose to make it available. The World also intimates, although the last date given is not a week previous, that other correspondence is in its hands, to be published when it shall see how this is received.

We do not like to say anything to the disparagment of Mrs. LINCOLN. If the letters were written of her own free impulse, they speak harder than we could bring ourselves to speak. If they are fabrications, or have been drawn out by cunning and deceitful men, all we have to say that it is cruel to her. In either case, it is too obvious and malignant, and the statements too incredible to do any damage to the Republican party. It is our opinion that Mrs. LINCOLN could not, so far as she herself is concerned, do a more injudicious act than provoke such a retort which certain persons for whom she evidently entertains no friendly feelings, could make.—*Pitts. The Gigantic Monopoly of the Hudson Bay Company.

George Alfred Townsend, writing from Canada to the Boston Post, makes the following curious statements concerning the Hudson Bay Company:

What is this gigantic monopoly, with two-thirds of a continent for its game preserve? Whence came this modern Nimrod, slaying his millions of beaver and buffalo every year? Are we aware that upon this hemisphere there is a private corporation owning nearly as much land as all the United States? This is the Hudson Bay Company, founded in 1670—sixty years before a house stood in Baltimore, twelve years before the Quakers sailed up the Delaware, and three years before Boston had a wharf. King Charles II made the Hudson Bay Company arbitrary and despotic over all the region watered by the streams of Hudson's Bay, and for two centuries its Governors have shut all this world away from civilized mankind. They have lied as to its capacity for cultivation, preferring to keep it a heathen wild for the hiding of wolves and catamounts, and the English Government has backed them up, to the wrong of the Canadian people who have thus been excluded from the fairest of the Northern lands.

This enormous monopoly employs 3,000 white men to haul its boats and put up its furs, and 100,000 Indian hunters. With two million seven hundred thousand square miles under its control, only 120,000 people live in it. For 110 years it paid annual dividends of seventy per cent. As far back as 1689—a hundred years before our Government organized—it paid dividends of fifty per cent. It set up a rival fur company, the "Northwestern," about forty years ago, and in 1805 sold out for two hundred thousand gold dollars worth of furs, which cost it in imports only two hundred thousand dollars. It has one hundred and sixty-four trading posts, is subject to no law, warns people off its immense estates as you would order a man out of your office, and protests that grain shall not grow in the haunts of the raccoon, nor prayers be said where the lynx crunches the bones of the Indian squaw.

This association of deer-slayers killed in 1865 80,000 beavers, 171,000 martens, 21,000 lynxs, 10,000 bears; 33,000 foxes, 300,000 muskrats, 12,000 otters, 18,000 skunks, and about 30,000 lesser animals, besides 145,000 buffaloes. It gives the Indian a pint of glass beads and a bottle of rum for a silver fox skin, which it sells for $250 gold. It steals, besides, from the United States lands $200,000 in furs every year and we ought to have had a military post on Red river twenty years ago. At the north end of Lake Winnepeg there is a place called Norway House, where the Governors of the five sub-territories meet Governor Dallas, commander over the mighty region, and the spoils of the year is promptly divided and the Indians duly swindled. The hunts for buffaloes are two in number, each lasting two months, and begin respectively June 20 and November 10.

The capital of the company is seven millions of gold dollars, and they own a million gold dollars worth of property in American Oregon secured to them by the treaty of 1846.

This cormorant company is now a stumbling block in the way of progress. It is a dark age romance to see its canoes come down the rapids freighted with furs; to see its files of half breeds disappear into the forests where all the long years the Indian has been slaying the game making a bloody wilderness war, lying in ambush against the wolf, and challenging the white bear to single combat. At last the long period of its hunting is over; the overflow of thirty millions of people will make a freshet up the streams of the Winnepeg, to drown out beast and slayer together, and take by the throat the uncircumcised corporation that would plant its avarice across the gates of a hemisphere and turn back the sluices of mankind.

A private letter from Fernandina, Fla, says the residence of ex-United States Senator Yulee was recently mobbed by negroes, and seriously damaged with stones and other missiles.

REV. GEORGE T. WILLIAMS, who was suspected of picking a lady's pocket in New York a few months ago, has been deposed from the ministry by the Protestant Episcopal Church in Virginia.

MR. VIOLENS, the great wine merchant of England, is dead. He was a sportsman; never had but one sort of wine in his cellar; never kept a clerk; never sent in a bill; never was in London, and never rode on a railway.

The Beaver Argus.

J. WEYAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

Beaver, Pa., October 16, 1867.

Our party friends in Iowa have carried the State by a majority of about 25,000. In Indiana there were no State officers to elect, but as far as known the county elections seem to have resulted this year about as they did last.

The result of the election in Ohio is as follows: The Republicans have elected their whole State ticket, by majorities ranging from 2,700, to 3,200. The constitutional amendment was lost, and the Democrats have carried the Legislature, having a majority on joint ballot of 8.

No wonder our majority in this county was so much reduced at the late election. In almost every township we now hear of quite a number of Republicans who were not at the polls. The Democrats, as a general thing, were all there. In South Beaver, for instance, our friends now count forty Republicans, who stayed at home, while but two Democrats were absent. In M'Guire's district 13 Republicans did not turn out, and but two Democrats absented themselves from the polls.—The absentees were in about this ratio throughout all the townships. Feeling confident that we would elect our whole ticket without their aid, is the only excuse offered by these delinquent Republicans.

The Lost Cause politicians of this State are very jubiliant over their recent barren political victory. They affect to believe that in the future elections will all go against us.—Our fears are but little excited. In 1862, the elections in Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York, &c, all went against the Unionists, and in some instances by heavy majorities, but instead of the result dismaying our party friends it only caused them to redouble their exertions, and from that time forward until in 1867 we routed our opponents at every election held in the States above referred to. The Democratic victories of 1862 taught the Republicans a salutary lesson and served to do them good for several years afterwards; the Democratic triumph of this year is the lesson repeated, and we have no doubt at all but that it will bring about similar results again.

The vote upon the State ticket in Pennsylvania is so evenly divided that the official figures will probably be required to determine whether the Supreme Judgeship is to be awarded to Williams or to Sharswood. This result owing to the assurances of our party friends in the east, in Philadelphia particularly, was unexpected to us, though we had considered it probable until very shortly before the election. It was indeed the natural result of the present position of political affairs in our State, and Republicans have reason to congratulate themselves that it is no worse.

There was no great issue set before the people, no important offices State or National to be filled to awaken excitement and bring out a full vote. The majority of Geary in 1866 in round numbers 17,000 is but meager in a poll of 600,000, no safer to count upon than would be 300 of a party majority upon a full vote in this county, which would have been reduced frequently within the last few years sufficiently to defeat a number of our candidates. The Democratic leaders throughout the State thought to take advantage of the apathetic lull succeeding to an excitement such as that of last year, and polling as nearly as possible their full vote, to sweep the State by a heavy majority. Holding no meetings they quietly perfected an organization which in 1865 would have been overwhelmingly successful, and we have perhaps to thank Andrew Johnson rather than our own exertions that there is not to-day an aggregate Democratic majority of 25,000, in Pennsylvania. His conduct of the administration during the three months preceding the election aroused and alarmed the people and certainly brought to the polls a large number of voters who would otherwise have remained at home.

Apart from the superior effort and organizations of the Democracy, questions other than political mingled in the canvass in different localities to the detriment of the Republican cause. The passage of the Sunday liquor law by the last Legislature and its refusal to submit the Sunday car question to the vote of the people of Philadelphia, were worth to the Democrats all the legal votes gained in that city, where almost one-half the Republican loss was sustained. The same and other questions operated in other districts, and we were held responsible everywhere for Legislation of the last session which could only have succeeded by Democratic support. In addition the action of the Republican party of Ohio in adopting negro suffrage into their platform was reflected upon their brethren in Pennsylvania, and aided the Democracy in forcing that question into the canvass wherever they could make it tell.

In our own county we have reason to be proud of the Republican vote polled, 600 in excess of the vote at a similar election in 1865. For this we are partly indebted to the malignity and mendacity of our opponents, which were never equalled in a political canvass in this county. There seemed no slander upon the private character of our candidates too low for the Democratic organ to originate and for their patisans to propagate. The people of the county have emphatically repudiated their charges and driven the liars and slanderers in confusion to their coverts. Yet it is but human to believe evil rather than good of our fellows and doubtless these attacks had their effect upon a few. The temperance question also, despite the safety valve of a direct vote upon it, operated to our injury amongst the advocates of license, and the financial managment of our county was prevented, until the credulous might have believed that we were upon the verge of ruin, instead of emerging triumphantly from a slough of debt with a reduced taxation, as we are now doing.

The dissensions of last year upon the District Judgeship made their mark again, and the diminished vote of our candidates for Judge and Prothonotary may be charged to that account.

We repeat that we are proud under the circumstances of the vote of our county. We have taught the enemy that we are to be taken neither by surprise nor by storm, and the large vote of this year gives earnest of a majority of 1200 for our next President.

The Lost Cause men of this county thought to catch the Unionists asleep at the recent election. They reasoned in this wise and it was upon this calculation that they made the tremendous effort on Tuesday of last week.—In 1865 the Republicans of this county polled 2242 votes. There was no excitement at that time, and a great many Republican voters stayed away from the polls. In 1866 the county was well canvassed by both parties, and nearly the whole vote was out. The result showed a Democratic strength in the county of 2385, or 143 votes more than the Republicans cast the year before. They had every reason to believe that the campaign in 1867 would be as quietly conducted on our part, and as much apathy exist in our ranks as there was two years before. In that event all they had to do to insure the success of their ticket was to get out the 2385 Democratic voters, which the result of the election in 1866 showed they had in the county. To do this every "Democratic man and woman in the county" labored day and night; and that they fell but little short of their mark is seen in the fact that they came within a few votes of polling their full strength in the county.—Luckily for us however between five and six hundred more of our men came to the polls this fall than were out two years ago, thus saving us from the surprise and defeat intended by our opponents. Republicans can see from this, the craftyness of the Lost Cause men of this county, and the necessity that always exists for attending the elections.

The majority of Sharswood in this State is about 700. The Republican "stay at homes," of either Lawrence or Beaver could have extinguished over the half of it, and Allegheny with a full vote could have elected Williams herself. The party throughout the State, we trust, has received a lesson which it will be slow to forget.

The names of John Hickman, of Chester, Col. E. W. Davis, of Philadelphia, Col. John Ewing, of Washington, and Samuel McCamant, of Blair county, are mentioned in connection with the Speakership of the next House of Representatives. Gen. Irwin, of this county, and Messrs. Connell of Philadelphia, Mason of Bradford, and Taggart of Lancaster, are named for the State Treasury.

Mr. Editor: The Democrats in this place insist that Quay and Taylor at the last session of the Legislature voted against a Free Railroad Law and that Nicholson advised them to this course, and give the Argus as authority. Is there any foundation for the story?

FREEDOM.

No; it is false that either Col. Taylor or Col. Quay ever voted against a Free Railroad law, false that Mr Nicholson advised them to do so and false that the Argus ever made either statement. Both our representatives voted on every occasion during the session in favor of a General Railroad law, and fulfilled all their pledges to the people upon this question. The lie was coined by the Democratic organ as were a hundred others for effect upon the pending campaign.

A Free Railroad Law was introduced in the Senate by Mr. Bigham of Allegheny, and in its passage was so amended by its opponents as to deprive it of much of its efficacy, Col. Taylor voting steadily against the amendments. When the vote came to be taken upon the law as amended the question with the Free Railroad men was whether to take it as it was, shorn of its original proportions, or to defeat it altogether. Col. Taylor and others thought it better than no law at all and voted for it accordingly. A correspondent of the Argus writing from Harrisburg stated that this policy was approved by the advocates of the law generally and mentioned Mr. Nicholson amongst these.

A Free Railroad bill was introduced in the House and was passed un-amended except by its friends, Col. Quay voting for it, and it was afterwards defeated in the Senate. Mr. Nicholson's name was never connected with Col. Quay's action either pro or con in the Argus or elsewhere, except in the Local.

If "Freedom" when next in Beaver will call at our office we will give the record upon these questions.

How it was Done.

We invite the attention of our readers to the following circular issued by Mr. Wallace, the Chairman of the Democratic State Central committee. It developes the method by which the Democratic vote was so fully polled here and elsewhere. If the Democrats in the "slow districts" will call to mind the "active men" who waited upon them to urge them to the polls, they will know where the money went in Beaver county, and upon inquiry can ascertain how much was paid per head, for each of them.

DEMOCRATIC STATE COMMITTEE ROOMS,
No. 728 Sansom street,
PHILADELPHIA, September 18, 1867.

To——, Esq.
Chairman of County Committee,
—— County.

DEAR SIR: The necessity for close attention to details in this contest is most apparent. It is comparatively noiseless, but it should be made full of activity.

The great end, to be accomplished is: To poll every Democratic vote.

The first thing to be done is to learn the names of all the Democrats and doubtful men. For this purpose the blanks were furnished you, and so far as you have returned to me the lists. I to-day send you copies by mail. Send the remainder as rapidly as possible.

These lists are to be placed in the hands of active men in the districts: I indorse in each list a circular describing their duties for their direction; I also enclose you a copy thereof.

Make it your business to employ these men yourself: do not trust to letters; go and see them; pay them for their time in warning the delatory, and for election day, and provide means to hire slow men to the polls. It is better to spend money in this way than by meetings. If you have any doubt of the men that you employ, tell others of our friends that you have placed money in their hands.

Get your detailed vote for 1865 and 1866.—Compare the two, this will show you the districts likely to be slow. Give them special attention now. It is important to get reliable men in each district. Do not devote your attention to making a specific majority but look to getting your whole vote. When this is done the majority follows.

In very slow districts, I would suggest a special contract with active men, thus; in 1865 the district polled 100 Democratic votes; in 1866. 120 Democratic votes; now, for every Democratic vote over 110 polled we will pay you a fixed sum the day after the election This is simply an incentive to bring men out for the vote of 1866 shows they are there.

See that your agents have all Democrats assessed, naturalized and their taxes paid.—Let me know what I can do for you.

Send forward the lists rapidly.

Be very careful of this paper; keep in entirely private.

Respectfully yours,
WILLIAM A. WALLACE,
Chairman.

The Election—A Lesson.

Late in the Summer of 1862 Mr Lincoln was persuaded, after long urging and hesitation, to issue his edict of Emancipation. The country, it was said, was not prepared for it—that is, the slow coaches were not. And when the elections that soon followed showed Democratic gains almost everywhere—from East to West—the "conservatives" shouted that Abolition and Radicalism had received their deathblow. "Look at Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Wisconsin!" they exclaimed—"their Republican majorities reduced more than half; see Pennsylvania carried by the Democrats, and a U. S. Senator gained, in spite of Lincoln's large majority; see Ohio, swept clean by 5,000 majority for the Democrats, who carry fourteen Representatives in Congress—a clear gain of seven; see Indiana, Illinois likewise carried—both branches of the Legislature, two-thirds of the Representatives in Congress, and a Democratic U. S. Senator gained in each; see New Jersey, which gave Lincoln four of her seven electors, now swept by the Democrats by over fourteen thousand majority, giving another Senator, with four of the five Representatives in Congress; look at New-York, where Lincoln had fifty thousand majority, and the Union ticket last year a hundred thousand, now electing Seymour Governor by ten thousand, and seventeen to fourteen Representatives in Congress—do you not see the handwriting on the wall? Isn't it high time to give up nigger-worship and attend to saving the Union?"

These taunts were bitter, but the exultation that impelled them was transient. Though Fredericksburg, and Galveston, and the first repulse at Vicksburg and Chancellorsville, were still before us, the National cause was not lost, for it was the cause of Freedom and Humanity. Much less is it lost now, though the false hearts which thought the defeat of Wadsworth and the loss of Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois, lessons that only the blind could fail to read and heed, still remain to renew their croakings, and have another, though lesser opportunity.

Judge Sharswood is elected to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, as we feared he would be; and we believe this the extent of the Democratic triumph in that State, Many Republicans would vote for him on personal grounds; yet a good County ticket in Philadelphia would have defeated his election. But it was supposed that any thing would be elected that could get on the Republican ticket; so nominations were made that the people would not support; while the Democrats, having little hope of success, nominated three soldiers who had a good War record for the best offices, and so gained thousands of votes. We trust the lesson will not be lost on those who control nominations in our State. We can tell them that the Legislative jobbers and Railroad robbers who are "fixing things" in several districts to nominate themselves to our next Legislature may buy ever so many delegates, but cannot buy the people. Mr. Jacob Sharp, for example, will waste his money if he uses it to achieve a Republican nomination.

We shall of course have the old cry renewed—"See how Ohio has voted down Equal Manhood Suffrage—hadn't we better drop the nigger, and take care of ourselves!" The answer is ready: Ohio on Tuesday gave more votes, and a larger proportion of her Republican strength, for Manhood Suffrage, than any other State has ever given—more by many thousands than she would ever have given till now. Say that one Republican in every twenty went straight over to the enemy on this question, and one weak brother voted the Republican ticket but failed to vote for Manhood Suffrage, what of it? New-York, twenty one years age, gave but 85,406 votes for Equal Rights; in 1860, she more than doubled this, giving it 197,503; and still it was heavily beaten, through Lincoln carried the State at that election by 50,000 majority.—The next time, it will have at least 300,000; and, if beaten by a handful, its enemies will scream and fire guns for their glorious victory. So it will be in other States; while the vital principle of genuine Democracy marches on through seeming defeats to its inevitable and conclusive triumph.—N. Y. Tribune.

Death of Gen. Charles Griffin.

Editor Argus: All soldiers of the late war, members of the Fifth Corps, remember with pride their gallant commander, Gen. C. Griffin. The telegraph a short time ago gave notice of the death of that officer, of yellow fever, at Galveston, Texas, shortly after he had assumed command of the Fifth military district.

Sad and painful as is the announcement, there is in the circumstances attending it, that which will excite admiration in every true heart, The closing scenes of Gen. Griffin's life, was a fit ending of a career that commenced and ended in glory.

When the yellow fever broke out at Galveston Texas, his Headquarters was at that post. All the civilans who could do so had fled the city; nearly all of Griffin's subordinate officers were sick or dead of it; not a surgeon was left alive to minister to their wants—There was in the scenes around enough to appall the stoughtest hearts and make even the veterans of many battle fields shrink from the dangers presented, at such a moment Gen. Griffin received orders to take command of the Fifth District with headquarters at New Orleans. The Army and Navy Journal says: "An officer less conscientious and true to duty and honor, would have accepted this unsought assignment to duty in another city as a providential way of escape out of that horrible fever pit of Galveston, where to remain was to be struck down, and where he saw his own turn must soon come if he remained. But this very consciousness was enough for Griffin's decision. Instantly he telegraphed to Washington that he might be allowed in accepting his new duties, to remain at Galveston a few days, resting the ravages of the disease as the reason, and adding that to leave now would be like deserting one's post in the presence of the enemy. His request was granted, and as could easily have been foreseen in a few days later the chivalrous soldier was dead."

Such was the death of Gen. Griffin—a death more glorious if possible than if he had fallen on the battle-field, where he had so often faced the enemies of his country, and crowning with glory a life of heroic actions. America has lost a true hero. May his fame live forever.

EX-VOLUNTEER.

It is believed that two thousand fraudulent votes were polled in Philadelphia last Tuesday, by means of counterfeit tax receipts or by tax receipts given to illegal voters. In order to prevent future frauds of this character, the Pennsylvania Legislature will be called upon this winter to enact a thorough registry law. The law should be a general one, however, and not confined to a single or few districts.

Communion Services.—On last Sabbath communion services were held in the M. E. Church of this place.

Change of Time.—The time tables of the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad company, and the Pittsburgh Ft. Wayne and Chicago company have undergone a change recently. See table in another column.

Money Order Post Office.—The Post office at Wellsville, has been made a money order office. This will be a great convenience to the citizens of that enterprising village.

The Ohio River.—On last Friday we heard it asserted that the "oldest inhabitant" had never seen the Ohio river as low as it was at that time.

Wine.—A gentleman in New Jersey, named Speer, is cultivating the Port grape with signal success, from which an excellent wine is made, which is better than imported Port, and has been adopted for medicinal purposes in the hospitals of New York, Philadelphia and Washington. 2t

Base Ball.—A match game of base ball was played in Sewickly, on Saturday 12th inst., between the Rebelle of that place, and the Rough & Ready club of Beaver. The former came off victorious.

See one of the Prize Cups awarded to A. Speer for his celebrated Port Grape Wine. It is the best grape wine ever produced in this country, the standard wine for communion purposes, and the most beneficial for females and weakly persons. 1y

The Drought.—The drought. It may be said, still continues in this locality. We have had within the past week several little showers of rain, but not enough to do much in the way of softening the earth or causing the grass to grow.

Sheep Killed.—On the morning of the 8th inst. three dogs, belonging to neighbors, made an attack on a flock of sheep belonging to John C. Christy, Esq., of Raccoon township, and in a short time killed and mangled about 30 of his flock. The dogs were found at the whole of them killed.

Bound Over.—J. H. Odell, the editor of the Local in his place, was arrested on last Wednesday, and bound over in the sum of one thousand dollars for his appearance at the November term of Court. The information was made by Capt. Barnes, who was recently elected Treasurer of this county, who charges the arrested party with libel.

Brought to Jail.—On last Monday evening constable Anderson of Rochester, this county, brought a man named Alexander Ritchie of Hopewell township to jail, on a charge of assault and battery and surety of the peace. The prisoner is not of sound mind, and for some time past has been thought dangerous in the community in which he lived. We would judge from what we have heard that an asylum would be a more proper place for him than a county prison.

Meeting of the Return Judges.—The Return judges of this county met at the Court House in this place on last Friday at 10 A. M. They organized by electing B. R. Bradford, Esq., of New Brighton, as President, and B. F. Wilson and J. R. Harrah, Esqrs., as Secretaries. The vote as returned by them will be found in detail in another column.

Larceny from a Blind Man.—On Wednesday last Porter Logsdon and William Garland, two colored boys, were committed to prison on a charge of larceny, in default of bail in the sum of $200. It appears that they went to the grocery store of Authur Lugg, a blind man, in South New Castle, and asked for some tobacco, while he was getting it he heard the noise of his money box being moved. He went to the place where he kept it and it was gone, and so were the boys. He called to them at the door and gave the alarm—they returned the box containing fifteen or twenty dollars and then skedaddled; but, were afterwards arrested—had an examination before Alderman Dickson, and were committed for trial at our next Court of Quarter Sessions. These same boys have served a term of five years in the House of Refuge.—Lawrence Journal.

Little on the Rampage.—Mr. L. R. W. Litle, of Washington county, Pa., is terribly incensed at Greeley by in publishing the fact that he was suspended from the practice of the law in that county, in consequence of his disreputable conduct in the Fegler case, and true to his instinct accosted us in such a manner as we might naturally suspect from such a gentleman on Friday last, indulging in a tirade of the choice language in vogue in the fish markets. He denounced the report as a lie, asserted that he had not been suspended, and that no such report had ever been published in the Pittsburgh Commercial. We will not contract the report, for the reason that it is true, and deny him to carry into execution any of the gentlemanly threats he saw proper to favor us with. Go on, Mr. Little, if your conduct on Friday was a specimen of your character, as we believe it is, inasmuch as the members of your political party refused to permit you to speak at their meeting on Thursday evening, we are inclined to the opinion that you may yet meet with a different kind of suspension. We say now, as we said to your face, on Friday, that a man who will so far demean himself as you then did is not a fit associate for honorable men, and should never have been admitted to the bar of any court. You were rejected in the Court of Common Pleas of Jefferson county, at Steubenville, when, on your own motion—no attorney at that bar being willing to bear the odium—you asked to be admitted to practice at that bar. Do you deny that? Your standing is so well known here that the Democracy of Wellsville would not suffer your presence, at its meeting here, notwithstanding, by some hocus pocus, your name was put upon the bills, unknown to the committee; and the citizens of Wellsville honor them for it. We are a peace man, Mr. Little; we don't like fighting; you know that; but carry your threats into execution and you may get your hide tanned by a quicker process than has ever yet been patented. We advise you to go back to Pennsylvania and stay there; don't be advertising your lack of brains by coming over to Wellsville and venting your profanity and spleen on us. You are a played out specimen of greatness, and you may as well hunt your hole and stay there. People here think just as much of you as they do in Washington, and if you had a grain of good sense you would have seen it before this time. Do you remember at one time of your publicly exulting over the defeat of the Union army in one of its hard fought battles, while you were here on a visit? Perhaps not. We dislike very much being annoyed by such contemptible specimens of humanity, but such things will happen in the course of a lifetime, and we suppose bear our share of the infliction, and having borne our share once we feel very much like putting an end to it. Like the old man with the boys in the apple tree, we have tried words; next time we may try that nice little cane which has been so gally flourished by a long haired, genteelly dressed young man on our streets within the past week.—Wellsville Union.

Dan Rice's Great Show.—Our neighbors of Rochester, as will be seen by our advertising columns, are to be favored on Thursday the 24th inst. by a visit from the renowned Dan Rice, with his Great Show, and School of Educated Animals. Dan is making his farewell tour, and appears to have spared no effort to render it a signal success. He has associated with him some of the first Artists of the day, and himself appears at each performance in his brilliant and unrivalled Role of Clown; a character, it is scarcely necessary to add his keen wit and humor have made almost entirely his own.

He will introduce in person his famed blind horse "Excelsior, jr.," the beautiful Arabian, thoroughbred charger "Stephen A. Douglas;" the inimitable and unriddable clown mules Pete and Barney; trick ponies, jocky monkeys, etc. The bill offered is excellent and will be Nominated.—It affords us no little pleasure to notice, that our old friend John Ferguson, Esq., late a citizen of New Castle, this State, was, on the 28th ult. nominated for the Legislature of West Va., by the Republicans of Marshall county. Mr. Ferguson removed to that State a few years ago. Many of our readers will remember him, as having been elected to the Legislature for several terms, by this county some twenty or twenty-five years ago. He was afterwards elected to the Senate and served three years in that body. He will make an efficient legislator, and appears to be as ardent a Republican in his present locality as he used to be in Lawrence county. His election is certain.

A Perplexing Circumstance.—On the meeting of the return judges at the Court House on last Friday, it was ascertained that the election officers of North Sewickly and Hopewell townships had failed to sign the returns. The judges from these townships were therefore obliged to return to their homes, call the election officers together again, get their return properly attested, and then come to Beaver the second time. They did not arrive until some time in the night. Occurrences of this character take place, we are told, quite frequently in this county.

Found Dead.—A man was found dead on the track of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway, about a mile east of Orrville, on Saturday morning last. The appearance of the body indicated that he had fallen from a train while in motion, his head striking a tie and crushing in his skull. From papers found on the deceased it was supposed that his name was Augustine McCormick, and that his mother resides in Cambridge, Maryland. The body was taken care of and steps taken to ascertain the residence of his friends.

Suicide.—On the 8th instant, Mrs. Joseph Candles, living about two miles east of Columbiana, Ohio, committed suicide by hanging herself with a skein of yarn, to a rafter, in the dwelling house.

A Young Man is going through bankruptcy in Dayton, Ohio, whose only creditor is a young lady with a verdict of five thousand dollars for breach of promise.

Teachers' County Institute.—The attention of the citizens of Beaver and vicinity is called to the fact that quite a number of teachers of the county have assembled at the call of the County Superintendent, for the purpose of holding Institute. The Superintendent not being present, after consultation, it was thought best to organize and begin the work at once. An organization has been affected, and all are respectfully invited to meet with us and give us their aid—especially are all the prominent educators, ministers and professional men invited to participate. An effort will be made to secure the services of able men to lecture at the evening sessions as well as a commodious place for holding our meetings. We are sorry that earlier notice had not been given, as we feel that many would gladly have given their assistance both in the Institute and in the entertainment of teachers present.

JAMESON—ADAMS—In Chicago, on the evening of September 26th, at the residence of the bride's father, B. F. Walker, Esq., by Rev. T. E. St. John, Mr. L. B. Jameson and Mrs. Emma Walker Adams.

RISINGER—HOUSTON—On the 24th of Sept. 1867, in Beaver, Pa., by Rev. Jas. M. Shields, Mr. T. J. Risinger to Miss Lizzie Houston, all of Beaver, Pa.

Accompanying the above notice, we received a bottle of excellent wine, which (the Prohibitory Liquor Law having been voted down) we ventured to taste, and pass around the office. All hands unite in thanks, and in wishing to the youthful couple a life of unalloyed bliss and prosperity.

Horrible Tragedy in Canton Ohio

CANTON, O., October 18, 1867.

This afternoon while the congregation were assembling in the German Reformed Church a most desperate and deadly assault was made by Ferdinand Hoffman upon the person of his divorced wife, Caroline Yost. Approaching her in the choir, he demanded a few moments conversation, which being denied he asked her to kiss him, and while in the act of doing so, he stabbed her with a butcher knife three times in the breast and eight times in the abdomen and on the limbs. The scence was terrible and heartrending, and the screams of the women and the shouts of the men as the assassin fled from the scene of his assault, were exciting in the extreme. The murderer, with the butcher knife still in his hand, streaming with the blood of his victim, attempted to reach the railroad, pursued by a maddened and excited crowd, but was arrested in his flight by a stalwart countryman who compelled him to surrender. The excitement at this point was intense, and the general demand was that the monster should be lynched on the spot. Prudent counsels prevailed, and he was marched to jail. At one point the agonized mother of the unfortunate young woman confronted the crowd, and with a large sized stick beat the prisoner over the head, while at the same time he was beaten indiscriminately by parties in the crowd, and another demand was made for his immediate hanging. He was however, safely lodged in jail. The excitement is still very great, and numerous threats were made to take the prisoner from jail. It is doubtful whether the lady can live till morning. Hoffman is a desperate character, and was released but ten days ago from State prison. His only regret is that he did not kill her at once.

Some of the Lost Cause men hereabouts are crowing lustily over their victory in Maine. Look what a victory they have gained in that State:

Out of the general State officers, they have not one; of the Congressmen they have not one; of 31 State Senators they have only three, and of 151 Assemblymen they muster barely 43.

THE quality of California wheat is unequalled. During the growth of the kernel, no rain, not even a dew, moistens it. It can be transported around the globe without injury. In England its use is fast becoming a necessity. Mixed, half and half, with the damp turgid wheat of the British Isles, it furnishes bread greatly superior to the heavy unpalatable loaves made of purely English grain.

The Most Exciting and Interesting Book ever Published!

THE HISTORY OF THE SECRET SERVICE.

BY GEN. L. C. BAKER.

Late Provost Marshall of the War Department and Chief of the National Detective Police.

UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS!

Over 30,000 Copies Sold in one Month!

THIS WORK EMBRACES AN AUTHENTIC AND OFFICIAL ACCOUNT of the hitherto suppressed facts and information obtained by GENERAL BAKER, during his five years services as Chief of the National Detective Police. It was announced more than a year ago, but owing to the attempts of the Government to suppress it, its publication was delayed. It is now being issued, UNALTERED and UNABRIDGED, UNDER the SUPERVISION of GENERAL BAKER.

The author's well-known confidential and intimate relations with Mr. LINCOLN and his Cabinet, and his numerous personal adventures, has made his name as familiar to the American people as those of our most distinguished Military heroes. The little information and meagre accounts of his operations derived from the newspapers of the day, have only awakened a more intense desire in the minds of the reading community to learn still more of the mysteries heretofore hidden by the curtain of official surveillance.

This book effectually lifts the veil of secrecy and lays bare their inward recesses to the inspection and criticism of the world.

The MORALS of the National Capital are THOROUGHLY VENTILATED, and there are some STRANGE REVELATIONS concerning HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS, Members of Congress, FEMALE PARDON BROKERS, and DISTINGUISHED MILITARY CHARACTERS.

It contains the only official History of the ASSASSINATION CONSPIRACY, from its conception in the haunts of villainy to the burial-place of Booth.

For thrilling interest, these marvellous narratives of GENERAL BAKER eclipse the famous experiences of FOUCHE and VIDOCQ, and possess the rare merit of truth for their recommendation, having all attested by the highest official authority. Now that the war is over, and the plea of "military necessity" can no longer be urged as an excuse for withholding the important facts revealed by these disclosures, it is both fitting and just that the people who spent their treasure and shed their blood for the preservation of the Union, should have its inner history presented to them by the official and sole custodian of the Archives of the Nation's Secret Service.

This work is sold by subscription only, and cannot be had except through our regularly authorized traveling Agents. Subscribers will not be obliged to take the work unless it corresponds with the description in every particular.

RESPECTFULLY ANNOUNCE TO THEIR NUmerous friends and the public generally, that they intend opening a New Grocery Store, on adjoining the Dry Goods Store of A. G. Hurst, on the 5th day of March.

BRIDGE STREET, BRIDGEWATER,

It is their intention of having on hand, at all times, a full assortment of the

BEST FAMILY GROCERIES,

and they beg leave to state that they are determined to compete with all other dealers in the town or neighborhood, as their Stock of Goods are all new, and bought at the late great reduction, and selected with the greatest care by Mr. HARVEY BROWN, whose knowledge of the business cannot be questioned, having been with Mr. Arthur Harvey for many years.

They call particular attention to their stock of Teas and Coffee, as they flatter themselves they have something extra to offer as to price and quality.

The best brands of Family Flour always on hand.

Produce taken at all times at full market prices. All goods delivered.

Notice to the Inhabitants of New Brighton and Elsewhere.

I have this day associated with me in the practice of medicine, my son, Dr. W. G. Stewart, office on Bridge street, opposite public square, where he may be consulted at all hours.

THOS. STEWART.

JULY 1st, 1867.

Dr. Thos. Stewart having had an experience of ten years in the investigation and treatment of Female diseases, and weakness, has at the request of many of his friends, consented to spend Monday's at his office, on Jefferson street, opposite the Methodist Church, New Castle, and Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week, at his office, in New Brighton, where he will almost exclusively devote his attention to the treatment of diseases peculiar to females. Persons wishing to visit the Doctor for consultation or treatment, will find him at his offices as above stated, from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m., where he will wait on them with pleasure.

Those requesting will be furnished with the names of many who have been treated by him.

Correspondents will address the "Doctor at New Brighton, Pa. P. O. Box 198, where all communications will receive prompt attention.

Also proprietors of Clarke & Rhinesmith's Patent Weather Boarding, Patented May 1st, 1866, for the exterior of houses, &c.; This siding consists in forming the various strips of boards of a level or tapering shape across its entire width with lower or thicker edge, made with a suitable moulding to impart a neat and finished appearance. Shop rights for the manufacture and use of this siding in Beaver county will be sold reasonably.

Having had much experience, in building, and the Lumber business generally added to our new facilities for its manufacture, we feel confidence in inviting our old friends and patrons to call and examine for themselves, before contracting elsewhere. [apr10'67:tf

FALLSTON FOUNDRY!

ENGINE & REPAIR SHOP,

In Fallston Beaver County, Pa.

HAVING refitted and enlarged my stock of machinery and tools, and having secured the services of the best of mechanics, I am prepared to warrant all work done to give entire satisfaction. I have on hand different patterns and styles of Engines, Fire Clay Rolls, and am prepared to make or repair all descriptions of machinery, on reasonable terms.

PLOWS AND PLOW CASTINGS.

I have all the best plow patterns that suit this market, among which is the "Great Western," which has been the favorite of the county for the last fifteen years. There are five sizes of this plow, all of which I manufacture and keep for sale; also "Patent Lever"—right and left—"Mountain King,"—right and left—"Side Hill," and nearly all the different kinds in use.

COOKING, FRANKLIN AND HEATING STOVES.

Having made several important improvements on the "Climax," by which coal or wood can be supplied without lifting lids, and having two places for pipe, either or both of which can be used at the same time, with a ventilation to the oven, thus having the advantages of a Cooking Stove, Bake oven and Franklin Stove combined. This Stove has been in constant use for twenty years, and many of them after being used for this period of time, are now in good order. There is but a small portion of this stove that ever burns out, and this is easily and cheaply replaced. To make them still more lasting, we are now putting in tile or fire brick lining. Our other patterns are the Enterprise, Keystone and Premium. Parlor Stoves, large and small heating Stoves, Franklin Stoves, Jenny Lind's, &c. Grate and Grate Fronts, Fenders, Iron Railing of various styles, Wagon Boxes, two Irons, Tire Benders, Corn Shellers, Force and Cistern Pumps, Sad Irons, Metal Sinks for kitchen, Sheet Iron and Tinware always on hand and made to order. In fact, I manufacture and keep for sale, almost everything wanted in the machinery or hardware line.

In addition to our other Stoves, we are now making two new patters, No. 7 and 8, of the Great Republic, which are taking captive, the best cooks and housewives in the country.

Second hand stoves always for sale cheap. Two good new engines, suitable for saw-mill or shop purposes now on hand, and will be sold reasonable.
